

Stryker Score 100% for Cricket World Cup 2007

Global MSC Security and Stryker Communications have just completed exhaustive wireless camera range tests on the Island of Barbados

Global MSC Security (Bristol UK) were appointed as Consultants to the Royal Barbadian Police Force and the Barbados Tourist Investment Authority to undertake evaluation trials for wireless video transmission across a number of towns in Barbados, including the capital Bridgetown.

A delegation from Barbados visited the UK earlier in the year in order to evaluate a number of possible solutions including various wireless transmission technologies.

The flexibility in terms of ease and speed of installation afforded by purpose built mobile cameras combined with the inherent resilience of digital COFDM transmission, led them to choose this as their preferred option.

MSC Global then tendered the transmission trials for in excess of 80 camera locations. In a fiercely contested tender, Stryker Communications provided the most in-depth and cost effective solution.

The tests were 100% successful in all locations

A report of these findings has been prepared for the Barbadian Authorities who hope to have the system installed and operational prior to hosting the Cricket World Cup in 2007.
